PROFILE

I recently graduated from the Clinical Mental Health Counseling program at The College of William and Mary with a specialty in military and veterans' counseling. I work as a primary therapist at a substance abuse treatment facility that utilizes a holistic approach to recovery. I have a CAD-C-R and am transitioning to the LCAS-A credential. I also hold an MA and a PhD in the humanities and fine arts and have published widely in those disciplines. My clinical theoretical fealties and approaches include person-centered, social constructivist, and narrative therapy, and I have ample experience in the world of grief work.
